Awards for Peace Out the film:

Red Deer Press is thrilled to announce its partnership with award-winning filmmaker Charles Wilkinson and Avi Federgreen of Indiecan Entertainment Inc. to publish Peace Out — one man’s journey to discover the real costs of energy.

The Peace River is one of the most valuable and beautiful places on earth — but right now, every major energy sector wants a part of it; from mega-dam promoters and unregulated hydro-frackers, to the nuclear industry and tar sands.

“The Peace River is a microcosm of what’s really happening all around the world,” says Wilkinson. “As energy demands soar, energy companies look to ever more remote places to set up shop. As I traveled along the entire length of the Peace, I began to ask myself WHY this is happening, what the CONSEQUENCES are — and who is to BLAME.”

Peace Out is the personal journey behind Charles Wilkinson’s feature documentary of the same name, which pits energy company CEOs against world-renowned scientists, academics and activists, inviting the viewer to decide whose truth is more compelling.

Winner of the National Film Board’s Most Popular Canadian Documentary prize at the 2011 Vancouver International Film Festival and featured at Toronto’s Hot Docs Film Festival in April 2012, Peace Out has been hailed as “... a thoughtful, clear-eyed exploration of an issue that always ends in costs, trade-offs and (the) least bad options. This is not just another environmental advocacy film.”

Charles Wilkinson is an award-winning writer and director of numerous dramatic and documentary films and TV programs for theatrical and network release, as well as an instructor at the Capilano University Film Center.
